Abstract: This article discusses the advantages and disadvantages of the online education system in foreign language teaching.

As we all know, quarantine was declared in 2020 due to the rapid spread of the COVID-2019 virus. The transition from traditional reading to online reading. By the way, what is online learning? Online education is the establishment of a distance learning system using these modern technologies. Distance learning has become one of the most convenient methods in all areas, especially in foreign languages. As we know, learning foreign languages opens the door to the wide range of opportunities. In particular, it creates opportunities for us to broaden our horizons, sharpen our memory and making acquaintances and friends. Undoubtedly, there are many of us who want to travel to different countries and language learning opens the way to this dreams. For example, knowing the language of the country you are travelling to allows you to be free there, that is to think freely. A simple example is when you go to a restaurant, you have to opportunity to order the food you like. In addition, knowing a foreign language makes it easier to find well-paid job, because we know that today, when hiring in marketing, programming, manufacturing and a number of other fields, you will definitely need to know an additional foreign language. However, learning a foreign language means capturing the key to many opportunities and distance learning also has a place in learning a foreign language.

Indeed, a number of advantages and disadvantages of online education system were immediately apparent when used in a pandemic setting. Let us first turn to the advantages of this system with you. 1. The security of online education is one of its priorities in any situation, especially in a pandemic. For instance, in the traditional way of studying, we use different means of transportation to reach the auditoriums, but it is not necessary in online education and that is way, we are absolutely safe from accidents on the road. Online education has been instrumental in preventing the spread of the virus during pandemic. 2. In the field of education, it has created great opportunities for students as well as teachers themselves to be qualified in terms of modern technologies. In the online education system teachers send to students a slide and students read the topic independently. The electronic version of the assignments is send back to the teachers. In a sense, this will help young people to increase their knowledge of technology and train qualified personnel. 3. Another advantage of distance learning is that it saves time and increases productivity. We have the opportunity to study from anywhere.

In online learning, we can learn quality and affordable lessons even when we are comfortable with them. However, online learning also has some shortcomings and they include the following. 1. One of the most global problems in the distance learning system is the low level of and traffic problems in different regions. Besides, the materials which are sent by teachers require more internet packages. For these reasons, some students do not get the resources they need. 2. The next issue is that in the online education system, teachers are more actively involved than students. Sometimes students are limited to just completing assignments. However, in the study of foreign languages, it is necessary to put into practice the most learned resources through communication. 3. Another major shortcoming of the distance learning system is the lack of qualified teachers who are well versed in modern technology, as the concept of online education is not yet very familiar to us. In some cases, not only students but also educators themselves do not have a good understanding of the programs required to take an online course. This leads to a decrease in lesson quality or a reduction in lesson time.

By the way of concluding my speech, it can be said that the online education system is very important in learning foreign languages. This education system, on the other hand, has its pros and cons, as mentioned above.
