Abstract: This article talks about various methods of learning English for preschoolers, and since current English has already become the language of the world, learning English should start from preschool age. This will be discussed in the article.

Keywords: foreign language, speech, game, song, text, visual aids, multimedia:

It is recommended to teach English from an early age of the child. The earlier a child starts learning a language, the more effective it is.

As experts often point out, a foreign language should be started from an early age when a child enters life because children begin to acquire speech and motor skills from an early age (3-4 years). From this period, the learning rate is formed. Therefore, it is recommended in families to give English words and songs to a child from an early age.

It is effective to learn English as a time for games, not as a commitment. Thanks to this method, children's interest in learning English increases.

Here are some recommendations for teaching English to preschoolers.:

Songs and lyrics: They help children learn the sounds of their words, learn recommendations, develop language skills in a playful way and replenish their vocabulary. Before playing a song to children, teach them the words in the text so that children will understand quickly and easily.

- Learn English by playing games: because children of this age cannot learn by sitting at a desk for hours. Children master the skills of both words and actions through play. Through the game, tassavuri expands and his mindset grows. Playing games while learning a foreign language is a method that parents and guardians can easily follow. This method is an effective solution that allows a child to learn without getting bored.

- Create visual aids:

Using dialogues with pictures, cards, or dolls and soft toys to clearly describe vocabulary concepts.

- Speech activity: teaching English to preschoolers should be aimed at developing speech skills, which is an important aspect of language learning. You can practice speaking English by playing, chatting and talking with children.

- Encouragement:

During classes, pay special attention to giving feedback to children, as well as encouraging them.

- Multimedia materials:

Interactive applications, videos and other multimedia materials make learning English more fun for preschoolers.

- Using different methods in the lesson:

Daily activities in the same way make children bored and distracted by other activities. Therefore, the teacher needs to prepare various ideas using his creative abilities.

At the same time, at each lesson, children change places, form the ability to work with new friends and learn something new.

- Pablo Recasso claims that "every child is an artist." Use art to help young people learn English. The more creativity you use when teaching English to children. They study with such pleasure. The more innovations a teacher introduces, the better children understand and learn faster.

- Stories:

Stories are more effective than reality because it captures the imagination of children and supports the effectiveness of thinking and analysis.

In short, no matter where you are in your daily life, if you can afford it, telling children in English will help them get used to the words in that language. Speaking without tiring the child, although in very simple words, will arouse the child's interest, and his interest in the language will lead him to success. Examples of parents and mentors in language teaching enhance a child's competence. As a result, learning English for preschoolers is the most natural way.
